Title IX abused, author says

By MITCH SNOW
University Staff Writer

HEW's regulations regarding Title IX go against congressional intent, according to Tuesday's forum speaker, who was the author of the bill.

According to Rep. Edith Green, a member of the United States House of Representatives from Oregon's third congressional district, she is frequently tempted to deny parentage of the bill.

In her speech titled "The Road is Paved with Good Intentions," Green said she has been a victim of the high cost of education acts of the last three decades.

The intentions of these bills were noble.
They were to improve the quality of education and bring equality regardless of race, creed, color or sex, Mrs. Green said.

Law enforcement agencies such as HEW have subverted the intent of the law by the regulations they have added to them, she said. One example of the ridiculous things that can appear in such regulations is the ice water rule found in the regulations issued after the passage of Title IX, she said.

Health and Education act, she said.

According to Mrs. Green, this regulation made it illegal for ice to come in contact with the water it was cooling.

Federal agencies such as HEW are largely unresponsive to the needs of the disabled, she said. These agencies have cut back on the costs of the government's $18 billion a year to print, file and handle, she said. She also believes it costs American businessmen an equal amount to process it.

Most of the power in these agencies does not lie with the head of the agency but with the other members of the board made in the top positions by politicians. The power, Mrs. Green said, lies with the federal employees who spend their days dreaming up new regulations.

According to Mrs. Green, the civil rights acts were designed to combat discrimination, so it would be another form of discrimination. She said the quota systems created by federal agencies are creating reverse discrimination.

Quotes to me represent the crux form of mindless inequality, because that means important decisions are being made not on merit, but on some blatantly unfair, irrelevant criteria, she said.

Uniform requirements can only breed disrespect for the law. Title IX, as conceived by Congress, was not to do discrimination against women, but to establish more quotas, HEW claims.
It doesn't have quotas, but goals. Mrs.
Green said this is a game of semantics and she is becoming more and more anti-semantic every year.

Title IX was designed to do away with intercollegiate sports, or force integration by sex in P.E. classes, she said. Congress has had to pass specific laws regarding such problems created by the HEW regulations, she said, and even the President has had to interrupt his dealings in national and international affairs to issue a Presidential order instructing HEW to stop this nonsense.

Mrs. Green said she feels it is unwise to try to make up for the mistakes and injustices of our forefathers by creating quota systems. Even if the discrimination is in favor of a person, it takes away that person's individuality.

Senate OK's Bell after hot debate

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate
on Tuesday confirmed President Carter's nomination of Griffin B. Bell, an Atlanta lawyer and former federal judge, to be attorney general. The vote was 75 to 21.

Carter's selection of Bell to head the Justice Department stirred more controversy than the rest of his Cabinet appointments, and the Senate vote was preceded by more than six hours of sometimes acrimonious debate.

Republican opponents contend the Democratic majority was not applying the same standards to Bell that they would have had he been the nominee of a GOP president. Some of them also raised questions of "cronyism" because of Carter's long-time friendship with Bell.

But most of the debate over Bell centered around his civil rights record, issue emphasized by blacks and liberal organizations who opposed his nomination.

Carter has called Bell's civil rights record "super."

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said six days of hearings by the Senate Judiciary Committee left "great gaps" in the record. He moved to send the nomination back to the committee for further hearings. The Senate rejected his motion by a vote of 70 to 25.

Earlier Brooke had clashed sharply with Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who led the floor fight for Bell's confirmation.

Brooke was among Republican senators who suggested that if Bell were the nominee of a GOP president, he would be rejected by the Democratic Senate.

Bayh denied Democrats were "rubber-stamping" the Atlanta lawyer because he was the nominee of a Democratic President and at one point accused Brooke of demagoguery.

Brooke protested and asked for an apology. Bayh said he had made the remark inadvertently "in the heat of passion."

Bell, who formerly served on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, has been described by Carter as the best qualified person could find to head the Justice Department.

Brooke, the Senate's only black, called the six days of hearings held by the Judiciary panel "pro forma and perfunctory" and said additional witnesses should have been summoned in an effort to get all the facts about Bell's record.

Bayh, who took the lead in the Senate debate in urging Bell's confirmation, said Brooke's indictment of the committee was unfair. He said its questioning of Bell, lasting some 13 hours, had been probing and detailed.

Panel to hold rules meeting for campaign

By MARK JOHNSON
University Staff Writer

Dates have been set for the first campaign rules meeting and this year's nominations convention for ASBYU elections, according to the ASBYU election committee chairman.

Chris Burdick, the chairman, said a postponed rules meeting will be held 4 p.m. in 321 ELWC. She said the meeting is for prospective candidates, their campaign managers and all interested students.

The meeting will concern "not only campaign rules, but application deadlines, filing fees, election dates, new financial policies and filing procedures," Miss Burdick said.

The election committee and ASBYU Attorney General Mark Packer will be present to explain rules and procedures and to answer any questions prospective candidates may have, she said.

Packer said it is the responsibility of the attorney general to interpret campaign rules, and that he will therefore be working closely with the election committee.

Miss Burdick said attendance at the meeting would "save many problems candidates may have if they don't attend."
She also said candidate application forms would be available at the meeting.

The election committee office is in 438 ELWC. Miss Burdick said notices regarding campaign schedules, upcoming events and election committee
decisions will be posted at the office
daily. She said candidates are responsible for checking the daily notices.

The nominations convention will be held in the Main Ballroom, ELWC, on March 1. A firm time for the convention
has not been set yet, but Miss Burdick said she hoped the convention could be held in the late afternoon.

Exec officers study funding guidelines

By DON DAVIS
University Staff Writer

The ASBYU Finance Office is changing current guidelines for the allocation of student funds in the coming school year.

According to Sterling Jenson, finance vice president, the money allocated to ASBYU by the vice presidents will be used for research grants for student organizations, as well as special interest groups which do not fall under the jurisdiction of specific ASBYU offices.

"Once these organizations have money they feel that year after year they are entitled to the money," Jensen
said.

When they receive money, ASBYU gets no credit for sponsoring the program, and we want the students to know where their money is going," he said.

A moratorium set up at the last Executive Council meeting will, according to Jenson, provide the Finance Office with time to set up a new program which will include specific financial guidelines for students to follow.

Miss Burdick said attendance at the meeting would "save many problems
candidates may have if they don't attend."
She also said candidate application
forms would be available at the meeting.

The election committee office is in 438 ELWC. Miss Burdick said notices
regarding campaign schedules, upcoming events and election committee
decisions will be posted at the office
daily. She said candidates are responsible for checking the daily notices.

The nominations convention will be held in the Main Ballroom, ELWC, on March 1. A firm time for the convention
has not been set yet, but Miss Burdick
said she hoped the convention could be held in the late afternoon.

The new system will enable student government to help plan student activities. Instead of coming to the Executive Council during the year, the organizations at the beginning of the year should approach the vice president whose office their program specifically falls under.

Jenson said, "If an organization wants to receive ASBYU funds for one of their programs, they will have to be sponsored by one of the vice presidents.
If the vice president wanted to sponsor the program as an activity to involve all students, the council could include it in their program."

The College Council of 12 students, one appointed from each of BYU's colleges, was previously set up to approve or disapprove research grants for students interested in researching in their fields.
Jenson said a new council will be set up to replace the old one.

At the beginning of each semester the students interested in the grants will make a proposal to the council of students.

The plans for the grants will be viewed by professional researchers who will rank the proposals in light of up-to-date literature on prospective research projects, Jensen said.

'Flea Market' lecture series begins today

The Flea Market of Ideas lecture series starts today in 321 ELWC.

The lectures are sponsored by the General Education Committee, said Dr. Vernon J. Tipton, a member of the committee, and are free and open to the public as well as the student body.

He said the lectures are designed to give students a chance to get a variety of ideas from fields they will probably never take classes in and faculty members a chance to speak on subjects they are interested in.

The lectures will start at 9 a.m. with Dr. Keith J. Metzger speaking on "Gospel Guidelines for Present-day Politics," according to Dr. Tipton.

At 10 a.m. Dr. Peter L. Crawley will give a lecture entitled True, False, or Neither, and at 11 a.m. Newton as Defender of the Faith will be presented by Dr. T. E. Miller.

Dr. Marshall R. Craig will present
"Medea," "Catcher in the Rye," and Other Moral Tales at noon, and at 1 p.m. Dr. Jon D. Green will present a lecture entitled Is It Real? If You Think You Are Mixed Up Now, Just Wait Until You Get It.

The final lecture of the day, Catherine De Medici and Her Florentine
Friends, will be presented by Dr. Lamar Jensen at 3 p.m.

Carter proposes $50 tax rebates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is拟 to provide an in-cash payment for each American, including those who are too poor to pay taxes. President Carter's budget director, Bert Lance, said today.

Lance said the payment would be in the form of a $50 tax rebate for each exemption claimed by a taxpayer on his 1976 tax return, he said. There also would be a cash payment for persons receiving Social Security benefits and for low-income persons who don't pay taxes.

The total payments this year would be about $3 billion, he said. Congress would first have to approve the program, which still isn't complete in every detail, Lance told a news briefing.

Y teacher writes book for memory aid class

don't go in the out gate-way

A. Dean Larsen said students going through entrance and exit is causing damage to the gate's pins. He has seen students go through the wrong gates or through them backwards. Although students mad, the new system is more efficient than the old

When he couldn't find a good text for his memory training course, Dr. Kenneth Higbee of the BYU Psychology Department wrote his own.

"Your Memory How It Works and How to Improve It" was published by Prentice-Hall Company of New Jersey early in January, and was sold out in two weeks. The company has notified Dr. Higbee that the book is already in its second printing. It is available in both paperback and hardback editions.

According to Dr. Higbee, memory can improve his memory, because remembering is a skill that can be learned. The book tells how to learn life skills that can be improved even a "poor" memory.

The book begins by discussing some false ideas that many people have about improving their memories, then discusses what memory is, including such things as short-term memory and long-term learning.

Later chapters discuss principles of learning, such as organization and association, and describe effective ways to memorize and study. The last half of the book discusses mnemonics (memory aids), describing several mnemonic systems, psychological research on how well they work, and practical ways they can be used. Techniques are suggested for easily learning to remember names, faces, numbers, and schoolwork, overcoming absent-mindedness, and learning foreign languages.

The book is less technical and more practical than college textbooks on learning and memory, but also differs from popular books on memory training in that it is broader in scope and is based on psychological research findings.

As to the question of cluttering one's mind with facts, Dr. Higbee says you can't have too many facts, but you can have too much clutter.

"Our minds are already stuffed with facts," he said. "A memory system organizes those facts just as you would organize random material in a file to make it more efficient. Research indicates that the mind has practically unlimited ability to store information. The skill of memory is knowing how to get it back out when you need it."

Dr. Higbee received the B.A. and M.A. degrees at BYU and the Ph.D. at Purdue University in 1970, joining the BYU faculty that year. He has done extensive research on memory, has lectured frequently, and has written more than three dozen articles and papers for professional journals and conventions.

The author is a past American Men and Women of Science and Outstanding Young Men of America.

Hawaii plagued by immigration

By BOB BARR
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii's island paradise is being spoiled by too many people, says Gov. George Ariyoshi, so he is urging passage of a constitutional amendment to stem the tide of new residents.

"The program I am proposing will put this state in direct confrontation with the present laws of this land and possibly even the Constitution of the United States," Ariyoshi said yesterday in the prepared text of his State of the State message.

"Hawaii is a national treasure, but it is a very fragile treasure, one which can be easily destroyed by overpopulation and excessive demands on its resources," he told a joint legislative session. "In short, too many people can spell disaster for this state."

The Democratic governor, himself the son of immigrants from Japan, blamed rapid population growth for the state's problems of high unemployment, disappearing open space and rising crime.

Since Hawaii achieved statehood in 1959, its population has grown from 622,100 to 864,900 in 1975 — a rate nearly double the national average.

"A constitutional amendment would be required to allow the flow to the island from both the continental United States and from foreign nations, he said.

"Since the federal government controls immigration, it should provide special aid to areas like Hawaii with high concentrations of immigrants," Ariyoshi said.

He also called for legislation to channel more immigrants from foreign countries to other states.

To curb immigration from the other 49 states, however, Ariyoshi proposed a constitutional amendment to permit states to set residency requirements for welfare, public employment and housing.

court rejects ration plan

JO CARELLI

Press Writer

Youngsters, Stevens last summer postponed the plan's effective date until the Supreme Court could consider several appeals.

In another case, the Supreme Court refused to hear arguments by school officials in Lexington, Ky., that court-ordered desegregation orders were more than a year ago too harsh. The plan, a source of anti-busing riots and other widespread violence that required the presence of National Guard troops, requires the busing of about 23,000 students.

Recent rulings by the justices have indicated a reluctance to have courts sweep away desegregation orders.

Advertising changes KBYU-TV 'lab' image

By CHRISTINE NOKLEBY
University Staff Writer

KBYU, for many years viewed as an academic lab, is in the process of changing its image to that of a family station through aggressive advertising.

The purpose of the change, according to Bruce L. Christensen, general manager of KBYU-TV and radio is three-fold.

The first reason for the change is a desire for the station to be different from other PBS stations.

Secondly, most people in the community including BYU students think the station is only used as a lab for students learning the television trade and that it ain't only educational and "artsy" programs. Through advertising, KBYU-TV wants to inform the public that other programs of interest are shown as well as educational ones.

Complaints from parents in Utah Valley that television programs are offensive to them and members of their family have also motivated KBYU to change its image.

In early November of 1976, KBYU-TV staff members met with BYU President Dallin Oaks, to discuss the station's mission and goals.

It was decided that KBYU had great potential which could be developed if better equipment was used and facilities improved.

The presentation also stressed the station's desire to be different from other stations through innovative programming that would be entertaining and diverse.

Lastly, the KBYU staff felt the station would be successful if it worked around the theme "Your Family Station" and broadcast programs acceptable to family viewers.

Pres. Oaks gave his support to the station's commitment to make KBYU-TV a family station. "Pres. Oaks has been very loyal and just great in helping, encouraging, and prodiging where we needed prodding," said Christensen.

Since the meeting in November, KBYU-TV has been granted funds from the administration to be used in purchase of new equipment. One piece of equipment will be a new transmitting tower in Salt Lake City which will increase output from the present 4,000 watts to 183,000 watts. The tower is the tallest thing on the market, so KBYU-TV will be the first to have it in the country, said Christensen. Also, the increased voltage will make it possible for station programming to reach more people and with only the use of rabbit ears antennas. "It will increase visibility to the entire state," said Christensen.

KBYU-TV is a PBS station (Public Broadcast System) and broadcasts all PBS programs suitable for the family. PBS to many people means Mr. Rogers and Sesame Street. But PBS programs broadcast by KBYU-TV cover a much wider variety of programming. The station airs programs such as Family Classic Theater, which is showing "David Copperfield" this week.

An intensive advertising campaign and aggressive approach are being used to promote the family image in the community and BYU campus, according to Val Kendall, promotions manager.

Instead of using two different symbols or logos for KBYU-TV and Radio, one symbol has been designed to represent both stations. It is designed so the Channel 11 and KBYU-FM logos stand out. The station is concerned that people know where KBYU is located on TV and radio dial.

Advertising is done in papers such as the Salt Lake Tribune, Deseret News, various TV guides and The Daily Universe. Spots are also aired on radio KLUB and KSL-FM.

In these advertisements, KBYU-TV not only makes the public aware of quality programming, but stresses that everyone watches too much television and encourages people to choose more carefully the programs they watch.

KBYU-TV is sticking to its commitment to operate on the family theme. 100,000 homes last year were listening to KBYU-TV, according to Nielsen television ratings. The success of KBYU-TV as "Your Family Television Station" is yet to be seen.

Symphony plans for special concert

The second nonsubscription concert of the Utah Symphony in the current season has been scheduled Feb. 12 at 8 p.m. in the Salt Lake Tabernacle.

Announcement of this symphony special was made by Maurice Abravanel, musical director and conductor of the orchestra currently in his 30th season.

Utah's newly inaugurated governor, Scott M. Matheson, has been invited to appear with the Utah Symphony as speaker in a performance of Aaron Copland's stirring masterpiece, "A Lincoln Portrait," appropriate to the Feb. 12 date which is Abraham Lincoln's birthday.

In addition to the Copland piece, Maestro Abravanel has selected, for the special concert, a program that combines symphonic works of Johannes Brahms with light classical favorites of Bizet and Rossini.

The family of all will be Rossini's overture to "William Tell" which youthful listeners of all ages will have no trouble identifying as the Lone Ranger theme.

The melodious Carmen Suite by the French romantic composer, Bizet, will be another highlight of the evening. Most of the concertgoers I have heard say has not heard the "Toreador Song" which climaxes this orchestral offering as it does the tragic, though beautiful opera, "Carmen."

The first half of the program will be given over to two contrasting works of the composer, Oskar Werner. Johannes Brahms' lighthearted and nostalgic "Academic Festival Overture" and his monumental "Fourth Symphony."

Observed Abravanel, "While it is true that our greatest emphasis is on our regular subscription series in the Tabernacle and nightclubs, there are appearances throughout the state and region we have never neglected the larger number of music lovers right in our local community who desire and deserve to hear both the serious and lighter musical masterpieces at prices

Harold L. Gregory, executive director of the orchestra, announced that prices for the Feb. 12 concert are lower than for the subscription concerts, namely,

$3, $4, $5 and $6, with a $1 discount for senior citizens. There is also a special family ticket which admits the whole family for only $12, but Gregory cautioned that babies cannot be admitted.

All ticket orders and reservations as well as inquiries should be directed to the Utah Symphony Office, 55 W. First South, Salt Lake City, Utah 84101 (telephone 533-6407).

Local group will perform for Y dance

A local group currently under contract with Capitol Records will play at a dance after the game Saturday, from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. in the Main Ballroom, ELM.

The band, "London Bridge," is regrouping after a few of its members left for missions, and Saturday night is expected to be an outstanding dance, according to Susie Keller, Social Office dance chairman for ASBYU.

The group had a hit single which made it to the top ten songs in the U.S. four years ago. The group is titled "When I Fall in Love." The group includes four BYU students Jeff Kocherhans and his brother Rex, both from Orem; Bill Bacon, also from Orem and student Dave Clark, from American Fork. The additions there are other group members, Tammy Bacon, a senior at Orem High School, and Jack Dunn. All members of the group except Dunn and Miss Bacon are returned missionaries.

According to Miss Keller, the group is a concert band which would like to return to rock dances and so is gearing its music for dances. She further stated they have traveled around the country, are experienced and have good equipment. She said the Social Office is expecting a good turnout.

Joaquin Achucarro, noted Spanish concert pianist, will perform Thursday at 8 p.m. in the HFAC de Jong Concert Hall.

Lyceum to present renowned pianist

Joaquin Achucarro, Spanish pianist of worldwide acclaim, will appear at BYU Thursday at 8 p.m. in the de Jonge Concert Hall, HFAC.

The noted artist will also play a piano recital for both students and the public the day of the concert at 10 a.m. in the Madson Recital Hall, HFAC.

Achucarro is noted for his masterful interpretive executions of such works as the Debussy "Preludes" and Chopin's nocturnes and scherzos.

The master class teaching situation will give students the opportunity to work closely with Achucarro in technique, study and personal performance experience. The class will run for two hours, with all persons invited to attend, free of charge.

Tickets for the concert are now available at the Music Box Office, HFAC, or by calling 375-7788.

Still Room on the Ground Floor for Computer Engineers & Programmers

Computer professionals are aware that today's microcomputer technology has been developed in a company that, not too long ago, was virtually unknown. It was during late 1975—when AMD first delivered its first multi-million dollar (470K) system, consisting of a 5-year, $50,000,000 effort—that the company first established widespread industry acceptance. Now, AMD is the most talked about company in the industry: a compact group of high-talent technicalologists producing the world's highest performance general purpose computers. By the end of 1976, we installed 33 systems valued at $140,000 each.

The original design team is still virtually intact and working on future systems. Although we are growing at an extremely rapid pace, we are committed to retaining the same creative atmosphere that yielded the 470K. We are a small by computer industry comparison, we are still with fewer than 800 people. We are still friendly. We still enjoy interacting with our customers. We think it's fun. And we still reward personal efforts with personal recognition.

At AMD, we are in green place to work. This is the reason for the recent growth in our computer engineering and computer sciences, and consider yourself a cut above your classmates in competence, enthusiasm and potential!

Y basketball 'addict' looks for open man

By BRAD REMINGTON
Assistant Sports Editor

Anyone who has ever played sandlot basketball can appreciate a player like the Cougar's Mike May.

In sandlot ball it's usually every man for himself in a game dominated by shooters. A pass is rare. It is bitten then, that May became "addicted" to basketball playing jungle ball and learning to pass like he does.

"When I'm open I like to get the ball," the 6-1 guard was saying after practice. "So, I try to get the ball to the open guy. I love the assist just as much as the basket."

His favorite team is the Boston Celtics because they play team ball and "nobody worries about who scores."

"I try to be conscious of other players," the Canoga Park, CA, resident says about his effort to have the same attitude on BYU's crew.

His backcourt teammates are conscious of his efforts.

"Strongest wrists in the West," Scott Runia says.

"Mike also has great peripheral vision."

Then Runia held up his index fingers on each hand out by his ears saying, "Mike can see his fingers out here."

The junior college transfer from Pierce College in Southern California was recruited here to help with the passing and ballhandling which the Cougars lacked last year. He has done just that, leading the team with 50 assists.

Coch Frank Arnold says May almost single-handedly broke the Arizona State press last weekend. "He didn't have one single turnover except for a 10-second call which wasn't his fault," May's coach adds.

But Arnold says May wasn't recruited just for his ballhandling. "We thought he was a good player in every area," BYU's mentor adds.

May's statistics at Pierce College bare this out. He was 11-conference there averaging 18 points and 5 assists a game.

"I know I can shoot the ball," the junior guard says without naming some of his teammates shoot free throws after practice.

Leaning over the rail, Runia adds "May needs to shoot more." He vouches for May's shooting touch.

Arnold says the 180-pound guard is an "exceptional passer" and can shoot. "He's not a great player," the coach says, "but he is adequate in all areas."

What Arnold likes about May is he is a dedicated player and intense competitor.

"His dedication to the game is what we would expect of all our players," the second year head coach says.

"He has been a influence on some of the veterans and newcomers who have not been spending as much time as needed."

Arnold is 21-years old now. May's enthusiasm for the game by then when he was in the ninth grade. He had moved to California from Buffalo and "didn't know anybody."

"Basketball was a way to meet people," explains the flashy ballhandler. "It got in my blood."

Would play for hours in the local gymsnasiums which are kept open at nights. High school ball was the game by then where he was all-Los Angeles City at El Camino High.

The physical education major would like to stick with the roundball game after his playing time expires, in either scouting or coaching.

When he isn't fiddling with a basketball it is with his girlfriend and listening to music. He also enjoys the facilities for basketball. He likes playing basketball here and says he wants to help get the team back in the WAC picture.

Starting guard Mike May puts in a basket against Wyoming. Averaging just 4.6 points a game, he hopes to score more to compliment his precise passing.

UA's 'Herm the Germ' weeks' league player

DENVER (AP) — One of his teammates says when Herman Harris, the Arizona guard, is playing as well as he was last weekend, "You do get him the ball."

Harris, a senior, got the ball often enough for back-to-back 35-point performances for the Wildcats, won 102-98. The following night, against BYU, Harris led the way to an easier 113-85 victory that pushed the club's record to 14-2.

"Herm had a brilliant weekend," Coach Fred Snowden said. "It's rather obvious who was the dominating factor in both games."

On the strength of his performance, Harris took over the league scoring leadership in two categories. He is averaging 22.3 points per game in all games and 25 points a game in conference contests.

Other players nominated for the Player of the Week award include Doug Beeler, Wyoming; Michael Cooper, New Mexico; Jeff Jonas, Utah; Mark Lansberger, Arizona State; Tom Pauling, Texas; El Paso Alan Cunningham, Colorado State and Alan Taylor, Brigham Young.

Largely because of his efforts, Arizona is tied for the league leadership in the WAC. And Harris has earned the award as league player of the week.

Harris began his offensive display Friday when Arizona took on Utah, last in the Western Conference. The Wildcats won 102-98. The following night, against BYU, Harris led the way to an easier 113-85 victory that pushed the club's record to 14-2.

BYU's wrestlers take a break after seven straight dual meet victories to enter the Mountain Intercollegiate Wrestling Association (MIWA) Tournament this weekend in Ogden.

Since 2000, Northern Colorado, Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Idaho and Montana are scheduled to compete in the 15th annual MIWA showdown at the Weber State campus.

BYU's best showings last year at Fort Collins were third-place finishes by Sam Orme (118), LaMar Boyer (134), Craig Prete (142), Gene Patch (150) and Brad Hansen (167).

All five are back this season and four will be competing Friday and Saturday as BYU tries to gain its first tournament victory this season. The Cougars were sixth in a tough field at the Arizona Invitational and were runner-up to Northern Colorado at the Beehive Invitational.

Orme is 13-5 for the year. His takedown at the buzzer for a 12-11 win to open the Arizona State match proved crucial as the Cougars went on to topple the ninth-ranked Sun Devils, 19-17.

Paul Fehlberg (13-1) returned to the lineup and had two lopsided victories in his debut of setting. Doug Richards and Jerry Wilson also played well, he said.

Coach McGown summed up by saying, "Basically we're really pleased, especially since we had so many injuries at the start of the tournament. We feel like we have a great team this year and the upcoming Pepperdine match should be a good one. We would like to end the year with a 'Sweet Sixteen' team."

Last weekend the volleyballers were very successful in the Calgary International Volleyball Tournament held in Calgary, Canada.

There were 16 teams entered in the tournament. These were broken down into four divisions with four teams in each division.

The Cougar team played seven matches and lost only one of them. They did this despite the fact that they lost three of their players in the first couple of games of the tournament. Brian Carpenter and Ron Green both sprained their ankles and Craig Choate, who McGown said played the best volleyball of him,

Enter battle, Y groups urged

By GIFFORD NIELSEN
University Writer

The BYU Intramurals Office is encouraging clubs, halls and branches to get involved in the organizational supremacy contest being held throughout the winter semester, according to Ernie Denney, assistant director of Intramurals.

The Intramurals Office offered to compete in, and applications are still being accepted. But this is the last week to register, Denney said.

Some of these events are basketball, arm wrestling, racketball, handball, skill ball, bowling, volleyball, water basketball, tennis, track and a road rally. Four of these events—volleyball, tennis, track, and the road rally—are coed, he said.

According to Denney, the contest will be restricted in that branches can only have members of the branch participating, halls can only have members of the hall participating and clubs can only have members of the club participating.

Denney explained the organizational supremacy championship is based on a point system. A team will receive 25 points for entering each individual event. In the individual events, the organization will receive five points for each participant it sponsors.

Winners in the individual events will receive 20 points for first place, 15 points for second place, 10 points for third place and five points for fourth place.

Eighty points will be awarded for first place in the team competition. Those teams taking second will receive 60 points, with teams in third place receiving 40 points. Fourth-place finishers in the team competition will receive 20 points.

At the conclusion of the semester, the trophy will be awarded by the IM office to the organization that has the most points. The trophy will be a traveling trophy which can be retained by winning supremacy for four consecutive semesters, he said.

The Intramurals Office is currently involved with the start of the basketball season. Denney said, "This is the final week for teams to enter the basketball season. Jan. 28 is absolutely the last day. Those teams already entered must have certified officials. If they don't, they can't be scheduled for play."

Denney also mentioned that arm wrestling entries are due this week. Participants may enter in the IM Office sometime this week. Classification will be made up by weight.

BYU resumes dual meet action Feb. 3, at Utah and travels to Boise State Feb. 5.

In one of the shorter seasons on record, BYU's indoor track and field team will hold two home meets in a period of eight days prior to the WAC championship in Albuquerque.

Coach Clarence Robinson's Cougars, who competed in a regional meet last Saturday in Pocatello, will host an open meet Saturday morning in the Smith Fieldhouse. A second invitational meet will follow on Feb. 5 before the WAC schools meet in Tingley Coliseum in Albuquerque Feb. 11-12.

In the meantime, the BYU staff is looking for some improved marks in the two coming meets. Saturday's first events will get underway at 9:30 a.m., and the last should be finished up by 1 p.m.

Besides the Cougars, there will be performers from Utah, Weber State, Idaho State and Ricks. No team scores will be kept.

Robison is pleased with his distance runners, who performed well at Pocatello. One special note was the running of Luis Hernandez, newcomer to the campus who ran for Mexico in the Summer Olympics. Hernandez won the two- and three-mile events in 853.4 and 13.34. Luis was pressed in the final lap by teammate Henry Marsh, who represented the United States in the same Olympics as a steeplechase runner.

Saturday's schedule of events doesn't include the decathlon, of course, but BYU's newest decathlon star, Argentina's Tito Steiner, will probably perform in the high hurdles and long jump.

Freshmen who Robison is looking to for help this year include Cedar City's high jumper, Kim Nielsen, and Idaho's Rick Berrett, also a high jumper. Robison said he expects Nielsen to clear 7-0 this weekend or next.

Returning lettermen include quarter-miler Dale Connolly, pole vaulter Jim Barry distance runner Richard Reid half-miler Doug Murdoch long jumper Steve Baxter and distance runner Jay Woods.

id's Stabler gets Hickok award

ORK player made his weeded out and the professional Mon-and the most wide-open in the 27-year history of the prestigious award.

The 32-year-old Stabler, the first Hickok recipient who failed to win any of the 12 monthly competitions, received 31 first-place votes and 135 points. It gave him a seven-point edge over Joe Morgan, the second basemen of the world champion Cincinnati Reds. Morgan, who also failed to win a monthly competition, received 28 first-place votes and 128 points.

A record of 24 athletes received first-place votes, and a total of 49 received points. Stabler will receive the Hickok Belt, valued at approximately $20,000, at the 42nd annual dinner of the Touchdown Club of Washington next Saturday night in the nation's capital.

Nevada-Las Vegas, the only other team to receive a No. 1 vote, moved up two spots to No. 5 following victories over California-Santa Barbara and Pepperdine.

Kentucky remained No. 6 after victories over Florida and LSU. UCLA jumped two spots to No. 8 after a victory over Notre Dame. Marquette also defeated Notre Dame and beat Drake University, 10-9, as well. Miami fell back one birth to ninth. Wake Forest also lost one spot, rounding out the Top Ten, despite victories over Duke and North Carolina-Charlotte.

Atlanta cager injured

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Guard Geoff Petrie of the Atlanta Hawks underwent knee surgery Monday and will remain sidelined the rest of the National Basketball Association season.

A club spokesman said that Petrie's knee and meniscus were removed from Petrie's left knee during the operation by team physician Dr. David Apple and Dr. Jack Houghton.

No other problems were discovered, and Petrie should be back at full strength next season, the spokesman said.

Economic woes plague Mexican citizens

EDITOR'S NOTE — A half a century ago Mexico fought a bloody revolution aimed at giving the poor a better share of the country's wealth. Now some nine million Mexicans are estimated to be unemployed, and landless peasants are clamoring for land. Following is the report on Mexico—a Troubled Neighbor.

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer

QUERETARO, Mexico
They drift into Queretaro from the mountains and from the farm lands looking for work. If they don't find it here they may drift on 150 miles south to Mexico City.

There they stand in the chilly dawn besides Mexico's National Cathedral, the tools of their trade at their feet.

For hours they wait. Perhaps someone needs a plumber or a handymen or a gardener for a day's work?

Boys so small they have to hop on the hood to wash car windshields at traffic lights on beautiful Paseo de la Reforma Boulevard in Mexico City. They hope for a penny or a nickel tip.

Women with babies on their backs sit on blankets with a display out of Mexico into other countries.

These are among the millions of Mexicans struggling to earn a bit of money in an economy they do not understand.

Estimates vary on how many people are without work in Mexico.

30 per cent jobless

Realistic estimates put the number of jobless at about nine million or at least 30 per cent of the work force. The conservative magazine Nego-Banco estimates that as many as 16 million may be unemployed.

The president of the College of Economists says four million people between the ages of 18 and 25 were out of work in January.

Unemployment in the United States last month was 7.6 million people or 7.9 per cent of the work force. The United States has 200 million people while Mexico has 63 million.

The Mexican economy now cannot begin to handle the unemployed or absorb the 600,000 to 700,000 persons entering the job market each year. Mexico's 1977 federal budget is $30.8 billion, 38.9 per cent higher than in 1976, even though President Jose Lopez Portillo, who took office in December, has warned that this will be a year of austerity in Mexico.

Devaluation

Even for those with jobs the times are hard in Mexico. They were stunned Sept. 1 by the first devaluation in the Mexican peso in 22 years, another devaluation quickly followed.

Mexicans, who were promised they would not be devalued, lost faith in the outgoing government of President Luis Echeverria. Money started flowing out of Mexico into other countries.

Larry Law, representative of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. in Mexico, estimates that Mexico spent so much money trying to support the peso artificially, and so many people took money out of the country, that the nation had only $100 million in reserves left by the time the Central Bank froze currency exchanges.

An $800 million loan by foreign banks operating in Mexico and additional loans for the International Monetary Fund in Washington bailed the country out.

Economists estimate inflation grew about 35 per cent in Mexico last year. The year before it was 27 percent and the year before that 25 percent. Last year private economists figure inflation will grow about 3 per cent a month this year.

For those shopping in the stores and markets of Mexico inflation is much higher.

Price increases

Official price lists from a major supermarket show increases of 250 to 300 per cent in the past five years. Sugar costs 263 per cent more than it did in January 1972. Beans are up 214 per cent. Bread is up 300 per cent. Tortillas increased 300 per cent. Milk 150 per cent, beef 61 per cent.

Bus fares in Mexico city went up 400 per cent. A new Volkswagen costs 150 per cent more than it did in 1972. A new Ford Ltd. or Chevrolet Impala costs $12,500.

White bread was going up 300 per cent in five years the federal minimum wage increased only 236 per cent in seven.

Eat by stealing

"The only way I can feed my children with these high prices is by stealing," said Felipe Martinez, a Mexico City bricklayer.

If Martinez stops on his way home to buy tortillas, beans, rice, milk and meat he is likely to spend 56 per cent of the minimum federal wage of $4.32 for a day's work. His groceries would cost him but $2.50.

For two decades Mexico claimed a growth in its gross national product of from 6.5 to 7.3 per cent, a year. The future looked rosy for Latin America's fastest developing nation. Now a growth rate of 3 per cent will be considered good.

The future still looks promising, but the honeymoon is over. It ended after the Luis Echeverria government started massive spending programs designed to narrow the gap between rich and poor. It was, Echeverria said, a matter of spirit or fight a revolution.

Echeverria moved the government system from 43,400 miles to 124,000 miles. It built hundreds of new schools and thousands of new classrooms. The number of university graduates increased 100 per cent in six years. A large low-income housing project was started throughout the nation. The number of people covered by social security—an expensive form of socialized medicine—increased from 11 million to 25 million.

The Echeverria government spent billions on oil exploration but never said how much reserves had been found. New officials of the government-owned oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos—PEMEX—say they have 10 billion barrels of proven oil reserves, 10 billion barrels of proved reserves and may become a major oil exporter. Venezuela has about 17 billion barrels and Saudi Arabia about 148 billion.

In six years Mexico turned from an oil exporter to an oil importing nation, and turned from a steel exporting nation into a steel exporter.

But Mexico also became a nation that now has no import corn.

While making these advances the Echeverria government alienated conservatives, business leaders and industrialists, who called him "emissary of the past." And said they wanted to keep on without change to make themselves even richer instead of helping the poor get a better share of the economic pie. Private investment slowed, production dropped and prices skyrocketed.

"But the long-range outlook is still good," Law said. "Mexico is the leading nation in development in Latin America."

Willard Gardner, Rep. of Quinlan's, was sympathetic with our position on the bill.

Farnsworth said the safeguards were so strict that it reflected the committee's desire to support systems.

The Provo representative to the editor in a Sat. Ad wrote: "With Mr. Pratt I put the weight of Utah's death, making it difficult to sustain life than those who help a patient to live...such as a state to communicate...couple to hand over a death-minded doctor, license."

Later in the letter "Unscrupulous people directives or withhold revocation."

U.S. energy shortage returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — One cold winter and suddenly the U.S. energy crisis is back. This time, however, you can't even blame the Arabs.

The problem is that there's not enough natural gas to go around. The result has been grain schools closed, day care centers closed and hundreds of thousands of workers laid off in areas hardest hit by shortages.

President Carter, the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Energy Administration and congressional committees are working on emergency measures that may help, but won't fully solve the problem.

Last Friday, the day after his inauguration, Carter ordered the thermostats in the White House and other federal buildings turned down to 65 degrees Fahrenheit and urged the rest of the nation to follow his example. Carter says it may be several years before those thermostats can turn back up.

Here, in question-and-answer form, is a round-up of what's gone wrong, why and what is being done about it.

I remember the Arab oil embargo back in 1973 and the gasoline lines and all that, but it's been over four years and we haven't had any energy crisis. Now all of a sudden we're running out of fuel. Why isn't anybody warn us that was coming?

A: Arab oil has nothing to do with this winter's problem, which is caused by a shortage of our own natural gas. Furthermore, we were warned repeatedly by government gas experts, the gas industry and news media. But some of us weren't listening.

Q: There wasn't any gas shortage the last couple of winters, was there? How come it suddenly developed now?

A: There has been a natural gas shortage since 1973, and it's getting worse every year.

Q: I remember the Arab oil embargo back in 1973 and the gasoline lines and all that, but it's been over four years and we haven't had any energy crisis. Now all of a sudden we're running out of fuel. Why isn't anybody warn us that was coming?

A: Arab oil has nothing to do with this winter's problem, which is caused by a shortage of our own natural gas. Furthermore, we were warned repeatedly by government gas experts, home.

Secondly, the United States had unusually mild winters for the past few years. Otherwise the shortage would have hit harder, sooner. This year, parts of the United States have had record cold weather and the gas supply just can't meet the heat demand.

Q: Does that mean that gas will be shut off to homes and hospitals and essential public services too?

A: No. The Federal Energy Adminstration says there is enough gas to serve these high priority users, provided it is delivered where it is most needed.

The immediate problem is plant and business shutdowns.

The Federal Energy Adminstration estimated that at least 300,000 workers were laid off during part of last week because of the natural gas shortage.

Stennis says draft return necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said Tuesday he is convinced the nation must return to the draft as a source of military manpower.

"I'm convinced that like it or not we're going to have to go back to the Selective Service system for obtaining some of our men," Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said at the opening of a hearing on U.S. defense posture.

The principal witness was Defense Secretary Harold Brown, who told the committee he and another member before President Carter will decide what changes to make in the $123 billion defense budget sent to Congress a week ago by the outgoing Ford administration.

In what he called a statement of "my views of the international environment," Brown told the committee that "the basic issue is not whether the U.S. should have ample military power — we must assure that we do — but how much is enough."

Pentagon sources disclosed that last Friday, the day he was sworn in as defense secretary, Brown notified senior military officials of tentative plans to reduce their budgets by a total of about $2.8 billion.

President Carter said frequently during the campaign that $5 billion to $7 billion in waste could be cut from the Pentagon budget.

At Armed Services Committee hearings on his nomination, Brown told the panel "it's not going to be easy" to cut the defense budget by that amount.

Acting on the basis of studies and recommendations by President Carter's defense transition team, Brown proposed reductions in more than 30 programs, including slowdowns and stretchouts in some major weapons programs, cutbacks in some aircraft and Navy shipbuilding plans, and a 10,000-man reduction in Army strength.

The armed services were given an opportunity to argue against the proposed cuts, which could hit some of their most cherished programs.

Pentagon sources said the reductions outlined by Brown would come principally from the final Ford administration budget, but also from the current fiscal year's $112.8 billion budget.

Student picked as Bell intern

Mountain Bell telephone company has chosen a BYU student as its public relations intern for the winter semester.

Kathy Knudson, a senior majoring in communications at San Marino, Calif., will be working with the Mountain Bell public relations staff two days a week in its Salt Lake City office, according to Ken Hill, Utah public relations director manager for the company.

Miss Knudson is a former staff writer for the Daily Universe. Her responsibilities at her new job will include writing news releases.

Illegal liquor sales found

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government investigators are gradually baring into a system under which beer and liquor were illegally peddled with the help of millions of dollars worth of free television sets or bar equipment, preferential loans and credit and secret exchanges of information with cash.

So far the investigation has implicated the nation's largest distillers and distributors, confronting them with the prospect of having to pay fines or shut down their operations for a week or more as punishment.

Officials suspended federal operating authority of Glenmore Distilleries of Louisville, D&K Distributing Co. of Akron, Ohio, and Quality Import Co. of Albuquerque, N.M., last year for periods as short as three days and as long as 18 days.

Two divisions of Foremost-McKesson, the nation's largest wholesalers, are appealing in court administrative action lifting their federal operating authority for 10 days.

The nation's largest distiller, Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Inc., is awaiting a proposed one-day federal suspension.

Anheuser-Busch, Schlitz, Miller and Schenley have all either admitted making questionable payments or accepted government fines for giving "things of value" to induce sales.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lively grandmother thinks more pizzazz is needed in the homecoming celebration at Florida Technological University. So she's running for homecoming queen.

"You can have a cutie-pie anytime," said Rita Reutter as she marched through the Orlando school's campus carrying a green-and-white shopping bag with a sign advertising her candidacy. "Let's have something different," writing on the bag's side reads.

The rest of her shopping bag message:

"Hi, I'm Rita Reutter, your next homecoming queen."

A reporter described her qualifications for the title, usually accorded a campus beauty, with some skepticism.

"There's enough of Golda Meier in her face to win third place in a look-alike contest... her 58-year-old figure has the ungirled honesty of a grandmother 14 years over."

Mrs. Reutter is a determined candidate.

"I feel if I become homecoming queen, it would show that FTU gives everybody a chance," she said, adding "I'm looking to give the homecoming week a little pizzazz."

A widow, Mrs. Reutter is working toward a master's degree in guidance counseling.

She dropped out of high school at 17 and went to work. She married at 18 and, four daughters and 33 years later, she entered the University of New Haven in Connecticut.

This past fall, she enrolled at Florida Tech, which has 10,000 students, to escape the cold of New Haven.

Her candidacy is sponsored by the student government cabinet. She was appointed to fill a vacancy in the Student Senate in October.

Asians fear of flying class poorly organized NATO forces

plane ride Tuesday, but not until they had signed releases in case the plane crashed.

Only four in the Pan Am "Fearful Flyers" class had never flown before the rest had stopped for a variety of reasons, but generally because of bad experiences in the air.

After five lecture sessions and a half-hour runway taxi demonstration to help overcome their fears, graduates were required to sign a statement acknowledging the airline was not "liable under any circumstances, weather, negligence, or otherwise, for loss or expense, for any delay or failure to complete passage, for death or injury..."

And once seated on the 707 jet, passengers were able to speak with a flight attendant who had "fear in case."

After signing the release, the passengers were given a pep talk by their professor, Capt. W. T. "Slim" Cummings, a veteran pilot and former psychologist.

Cummings, who during the past two years has held similar graduations for 700 persons in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Houston and Miami, estimates the fear of air travel affects about 25 million Americans, including those who have a phobia and fly reluctantly.

Throughout the flight, Cummings, who was not the pilot, walked the aisle comforting the anxious.

U.S. military posture and weapons

The head of a French think-tank, meanwhile, said in an interview that the debate in the United States about the possibility of the Soviet Union having nuclear superiority is a false one and U.S. forces are still "clearly dominant."

The statement came from Gen. George Busi, who retired in 1972 as director of the French armed forces' Center for Superior Studies.

In a somewhat grim report to the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Dewey Bartlett, R-Ola., said Soviet forces in Eastern Europe have the capability to launch, with little warning, a "potentially devastating" attack in central Europe.

"The significance of a pact capability to launch such an attack from virtually a standing start cannot be exaggerated," said the report, released as the Armed Services Committee prepared to open annual hearing on
